Hooda claims Haryana better performing than Gujarat

NEW DELHI: Fierce competition seems to have broken out among chief ministers to project their achievements. After Bihar CM Nitish Kumar's claim of how his government had pushed growth in the state from near zero, Haryana CM Bhupinder Singh Hooda on Friday claimed his state was ahead of Narendra Modi's Gujarat in four key parameters, including per capita income, per capita investment, per capita plan expenditure and resource mobilization.

The state government has launched a media campaign to highlight its achievements in different areas.

Speaking at an event to promote investment opportunities in Haryana, Hooda said there were four primary parameters to evaluate a state's growth story. He said Haryana was number one in per capita investment and also number one in per capita income among bigger states. Per capita plan expenditure of Haryana was also the highest in the country.

Hooda added that as per a Planning Commission report, resource mobilization in Haryana during the 11th five-year plan was 192% of the projected mobilization against the national average of 92.5%. "I know only about Haryana model of development, which is very successful and can be verified on these parameters," he said.

The state government has been highlighting its model of development since Hooda returned to power for a second consecutive time. But now it's going all out to grab attention considering that Modi is aggressively showcasing his model of growth.

While Gujarat's long coastline and its proximity to financial capital Mumbai have been factors behind the state's success story, Haryana has the advantage of being close to the national capital. Around 30% of the state falls under the National Capital Region, which is a key reason for high investment flow to the state.

Hooda said after Gurgaon, Sonipat was going to be the state's future mega city. He said the government planned to develop many more cities like Gurgaon.

Can a woman walk on the street after 9 in any of the district of Haryana. Certainly not, there is one community in Haryana which thinks Haryana as their personal property. Biggest nuts. Still they will pretend that they have done a lot for country. A Politician father becomes a freedom fighter even during in his young age he was a thief or goon. This gives a chance to the politician to name every crossing and every park in this so called freedom fighter name. i mean what kind of democracy is this. the one who tries to reveal the truth, brings out scams is transferred immediately. its high time we people should wake up. youth must come in front. ahead of any caste. religion and creed. otherwise day is not far that we will be slave again. please wake up. otherwise politicians like hooda and his family will continue befooling us.
